

Curriculum Vitae

Mark Clinton

Experience

Mark Clinton is a solicitor specialising in construction law. He qualified in 1984 and has specialised in construction law since 1986. Initially practising in dispute resolution, his practice now covers all aspects of contentious and non-contentious construction and engineering work.

He has acted and advised on many disputes large and small covering a range of industry sectors including transportation, process plants, energy, education, commercial and residential.

His clients include public and private sector employers, investors, banks, contractors, subcontractors and consultants.

Reported cases include: Crown House Engineering v Amec (contract formation and restitution); Riddick v Greater London Properties (architect's negligence and fees) and Lorne Stewart v Hermes Kreditversicherungs (performance bond).

He has broad experience acting as party representative and as adjudicator in many adjudications covering a wide range of issues and project types.

He lectures regularly on construction and procurement topics.

Career History

2002 to Present– Partner and Head of Construction Group at Thomas Eggar LLP

1998 – 2002 - Partner at Nicholson Graham & Jones (now K&L Gates)

1988 – 1998 - Assistant solicitor, then partner at Bristows

1986 – 1998 – Assistant Solicitor at Freedmans

1984 – 1986 – Partner Trevor Stanley Chipps

1982 – 1984 – Trained and qualified at Trevor Stanley Chipps

Education

King's College, London - MSc Construction Law and Arbitration (1992)

College of Law, Guildford – Solicitors Finals (1981)

University of Kent – BA (Hons) Law (1980)

Salesian School

Professional Memberships

Technology and Construction Solicitors Association

Adjudication Society

Fellow of the Chartered Institute of Arbitrators

Society of Construction Law

